CASA of Hancock County and Hancock County Youth Court hosted a two-day seminar to "introduce a trauma-informed court model and practice," CASA Executive Director Cynthia Chauvin said.

The event was led by Judge Carole Clark and Dr. Donald Winstead III from Texas.

According to her bio, Clark is a former Child Protective Services caseworker and is a board-certified family law specialist.

According to his bio, Winstead is a licensed psychologist and has "conducted trauma-informed psychological evaluations in East Texas for over 20 years."

Those in attendance included staff from CASA, Hancock County Youth Court, Brenda's House Family Center, Mississippi Court Improvement Team, DYS, mental health professionals, and staff from Rankin County.

"The idea would be that children and families are better served when we are educated in trauma and recognized that children from from hard places," Chauvin said.

She said that Hancock County is the first in the state to participate in this evidence-based program, also known as Trust Based Relational Intervention.

TBRI is curriculum designed to provide long-term safety and healing for children, Chauvin said.

Chauvin said that CASA sent a staff member to TCU to become the Coast's only TBRI certified practitioner.

She said that the training was made possible through the Butler Snow Foundation.

This week's training's is the first implementation of training.

"We're launching it in Hancock County, but we want the whole state to implement," Chauvin said. Learn more about CASA at www.casaforchildren.org and Three arrested; 114 pounds of Methamphetamine and two pounds of heroin seized in what FBI calls the "largest in history on the Mississippi Gulf Coast"

SEA COAST ECHO

On Tuesday, 49-year-old Aaron Whavers of Pass Christian; 64-year-old Gerald Jones of Mobile, AL; and 43-year-old Sharard Collier of Inglewood, CA were charged with conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine.

The FBI Safe Streets Task Force, Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics and Harrison County CNET agents on Monday searched Whavers' residence on Firetower Road in Pass Christian and a tractor trailer truck parked at a truck stop on County Farm Road in Long Beach, a release from the FBI states.

"Agents recovered approximately 51 pounds of methamphetamine and two pounds of heroin, a Glock .40 caliber pistol and $30,000 from Whavers' residence," the release states. "Law enforcement also recovered approximately 63 pounds of methamphetamine from the tractor trailer truck parked at the truck stop in Long Beach. The estimated value of the recovered narcotics is more than $1 million."

Jones and Collier on Monday appeared before U.S. Magistrate Judge John C. Gargiulo Southern District of Mississippi, who ordered them to be held without bond pending a detention and preliminary hearing, which is scheduled for Nov. 13 at 1:30 p.m. before U.S.

Magistrate Judge Robert H. Walker in Gulfport, the release states.

If convicted, all three suspects face "sentences of up to life in federal prison and a fine of up to $10 million," the release states.

According to the release, this was a joint investigation by the FBI Safe Streets Task Force in Pascagoula; Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics; Harrison County Coastal Narcotics Enforcement Team; Harrison and Jackson County sheriff's offices; and the South Mississippi Metropolitan Enforcement Team in Pascagoula. The U.S. Border Patrol and the Jackson and Harrison County sheriff's office's canines also assisted.

"The FBI Safe Streets

Task Force is a Gulf Coast High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area or HIDTA initiative, and receives funding from the Office of National Drug Control Policy in Washington D.C.," the release states. "It is made up of special agents from the FBI and law enforcement officers from the Pascagoula, Moss Point, Gautier, and Ocean Springs Police Departments, Jackson County Sheriff's Office, Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, and U.S. Border Patrol."

The above charges are "merely an accusation, and all arrestees are presumed innocent until proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt in a court of law," the release states.

Waveland Mayor addresses residents' concerns about the MLK Park community center

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

Several of Waveland's residents on Thursday met with Mayor Mike Smith and City Clerk Mickey Lagasse to discuss their concerns about the construction of the community center at Martin Luther King Jr. Park on Herlihy Street.

Smith said that right after he took office during his first term, he attended a Helping Hands meeting at the park's old community center.

He said he had just had a kidney transplant and that he told his wife, "I don't feel comfortable going in that building with mold two foot off the floor. And if I didn't feel comfortable, nobody else should have to do it either."

Once city employees began demolition of the center, they discovered that the outside lumber also had mold, Smith said. The studs were also rotten, he added.

Smith said the city also had about 127,000 concrete blocks at the city yard and one of the initial plans was to use those blocks to rebuild the exterior walls.

He said that just the labor costs for a brick layer was close to $10,000, so "we didn't have that budget."

Smith said he then talked to Nikki White at the Mississippi Development Authority about funding for a new community center at MLK Park.

Smith said he initially had Compton Engineering draw up design plans for a 40x60 center with an estimated cost of about $700,000. Smith said he didn't want to ask the MDA for that amount.

"So I said let's cut it in half," Smith said. "I'm thinking 1,200 square foot, the size of the house that we live in, should be quite big enough to do what we need to do."

The estimate of the 1,200 square foot center was $327,000, Smith said.

MDA awarded the city a grant in the amount of $327,000.

The city received three bids, all of which came in over the original estimate: D.N.P., Inc. at $466,200; Samuel Day Construction at $477,000; and David Rush Construction at $488,000.

"The highest bid and the only qualifying bid was $488,000, just for construction," Smith said. "That didn't include the grant oversight."

Smith that Gouras and Associates was awarded the oversight for the project, which is legally required. The engineering and administrative fees are based off a percentage allowed by state law of these projects.

Smith read off a list of fees paid as of Oct. 31

Engineering fees to Compton Engineering: $36,618

Gouras and Associates: $38,500

Construction costs: $373,258

Smith said that the city was short of money once the bids came in.

The bids were accepted at city hall, but MDA chose the contractor, Lagasse said.

At that point, Smith said, he and Alderman Bobby Richardson went to Jackson to ask MDA for the rest of the funding.

Smith said MDA awarded the city an additional $269,708 for a total of $641,000.

"Two separate grants, both Katrina grants, KCCR and HCCR," he said. "The KCCR had to be used first. The $269,708 had to be used first."

Smith told the crowd that he was able to get Gouras and Compton Engineering to cut down their fees, enforcement services that represent current professional practices.

- Maintain level of services that reflect the community policing philosophy.
- Ensures policies and procedures are documented in writing, with clearly defined laws of authority.
- Strengthens the agency's defense against lawsuits and complaints.
- Assurance that the agency's personnel are trained and functioning according to established policies and procedures.
- Increases community support, pride, and employee morale through state recognition of the agency's professionalism, excellence, and competence.
- Assures government leaders of the quality of services delivered by their law enforcement agency.
- A quality of work environment for well-trained professionals that aids in recruiting and retaining qualified personnel.
- "Accreditation increases the Waveland Police Department's ability to prevent and control crime through more efficient and effective delivery of law enforcement services to the community," Dorn said.

Dorn said that accreditation requires an "in-depth" review of every aspect of the agency's organization, management, operations, and administration.

"The accreditation standards provide norms against which agency performance can be measured and monitored over time," Dorn said. "Accreditation streamlines operations, providing more consistency and more effective deployment of agency manpower."

Dorn said that the benefits for the officers include:

- Agency policies and procedures are provided in written form and available at all times to personnel.
- Assures employees that every aspect of the agency's personnel system is in accordance with professional standards and that the system is both fair and equitable.
- The Waveland PD must operate within specific guidelines as it is accountable to the Commission and must stay in compliance with standards in order to retain accreditation.
- Increasing employees' confidence in the effectiveness and efficiency of the agency increase morale.

- Accreditation policies address officer safety issues and provide for adequate training and equipment for officers.

Dorn said the commission sends representatives to conduct homesite assessments every three years.

The board unanimously approved the motion and the $300 costs for materials.

In other action:

The board approved a proclamation in support of Marsy's Law (HC 47) in Mississippi, a proposed constitutional amendment that would give victims the same constitutional rights as the accused or convicted.

Waveland's Veterans Day parade is scheduled for this Sunday, Nov. 10 at 1 p.m. on Coleman Avenue. The parade begins at the Waveland Library and ends at the Veterans Memorial.

The board spread on the minutes a letter from FEMA Director of Mitigation Division Jesse Munoz indicating the city's National Flood Insurance Program Rating improved from a Class 8 to Class 7.

The board approved three resolutions related to the proposed Mid-Breton Basin Large-Scale Mississippi River

Diversion Project:

The first resolution is a request to Gov. Phil Bryant to take "immediate action" regarding the proposed project to "prevent harm to the ecosystems of the Chandeaur Sound, the Biloxi Marsh, the Mississippi Sound, the fisheries, tourism, and way of life that depend on them."

The second resolution requests the Congressional delegation of Mississippi also take "immediate action and ardent legislative action to repeal Section 20201, Title II, of Public Law 115-123, and to defeat Section 409, HR3697, currently in the legislative process of the 116th Congress.

With the third resolution, the board adopted a memorandum of understanding with other coastal city and county governments to form a Mississippi Sound Coalition.

The board spread on the minutes a letter from the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources Executive Director Joe Spraggins, which announced the award of Public Trust Tideland's Grant in the amount of $225,000 for the construction of handicap accessible walkway and ramp into the water.

The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 20 at 6:30 p.m.

STEPPING BACK IN TIME..... SORT OF

It's that time of year again. No, I'm not referring to the changing of the seasons, the setting back of the clocks, or even the rapidly approaching holiday season which is expedited earlier each year (I have had to stop listening temporarily to a favorite radio station, as they believe it's permissible to blast Christmas music the nanosecond Trick-or-Treaters leave your doorstep).

I'm referring to the time when the Louisiana Renaissance Festival is active and partially transporting fairgoers back to Old World Europe. I say partially, because, let's face it, are these things one hundred percent historically accurate? I don't think so, but that doesn't make them any less fun.

I was invited by my co-worker, Cassandra, to the Ren Fest last November, and I wasn't sure how I was going to respond to the event. I always considered myself kind of counterculture, but I had never entertained the idea of attending one of these festivals.

I was pleasantly surprised at how much fun I had, and I am very much looking forward to next weekend when a group of friends and I are returning to the fest for more lute-playing, jousting and turkey legs.

The festival is held weekends in November in Hammond, LA. Admission (if it hasn't increased) is $20 per person, and be sure to bring plenty of cash for food, shopping, and tipping at their many shows and demonstrations. As I can recall, almost no vendor takes plastic or checks. Don't worry, there are "ATMs" or more accurately, staff members who act as them. There's plenty to do at the festival so don't be surprised if you don't get to do everything.

First, there's the food. The food vendor area is full of choices ranging from turkey legs to wursts to Asian food. Yes, alcoholic beverages are sold, but be prepared for a long line. If you get hungry walking around taking in the sights, there are snack vendors all over the grounds with fare from fried pickle chips and pretzels to caramel apples and kettle corn. After eating is a good time to do window shopping at the many tents and booths they have set up.

Shopping around and looking at the craftspeople's wares was another entertaining portion of the day. They have almost anything you could think of that fits within the fair's theme. There's a blacksmith who makes swords and other weapons. Wooden swords are also available if the price for the real deal is too high. There are woodworkers, textile artists, instrument makers and many other

Wicker Salutes Military on 100th Anniversary of Veterans Day

Promoting Peace, Prosperity, and the American Way of Life

On November 11, 1919, President Woodrow Wilson declared Armistice Day – now Veterans Day – to mark the anniversary of the Allied victory in World War I. For precisely a century now, Americans have commemorated this occasion with ceremonies and parades. It also gives former service members the chance to share their experiences with younger generations.

President Wilson thought the armistice would last and that World War I had been the “war to end all wars.” But just a few decades later, World War II would become the most devastating conflict in history. President Eisenhower changed the name to Veterans Day in 1954 in part to honor those who fought Japan and Germany.

Veterans Day celebrates all who have served in America's armed forces, not just a single armistice or war. As a veteran, the son of a World War II veteran, and the father of an Air Force officer, I was glad to join Mississippians recently to discuss the significance of Veterans Day.

A DEBT OF GRATITUDE

Earlier this month, many Mississippians cast their ballots in our state's elections. That right is enshrined in our constitution and protected by our military. No matter the tides of politics, gratitude for this security unites Americans.

Military men and women do not stop helping their communities when they put away their uniforms. Veterans are business owners, nurses, police officers, preachers, school teachers, and shipbuilders. In the camouflage of civilian life across our country, they continue to act as leaders and role models.

Americans' appreciation for our veterans is displayed every day. I am always glad to hear the phrase “thank you for your service” said to our veterans and to see honor flights come to visit war memorials in Washington. These small tokens of thanks go a long way.

During the past three years, Congress has passed 57 pieces of veterans legislation and sent them to President Trump for his signature. The new VA MISSION Act increases veterans' health-care choices and streamlines community care programs. I am actively working to pass the HAVEN Act, which would protect veterans' benefits. Other initiatives come from the state and local levels, including programs at our universities as well as nonprofits like Combat Wounded Veterans of South Mississippi.

PROVIDING FOR TOMORROW'S VETERANS

Veterans Day is also a reminder of the need to support those currently in uniform. In President Wilson's day, many Americans hoped disarmament would give us lasting peace. A century later, we have learned that peace comes through strength.

One of the most important roles of an elected official is to provide for the common defense. America has met past

Meal programs struggle as funding dwindles

Two years ago in Dallas I met an 85-year-old woman and her 65-year-old son. Both were very hungry with almost no food in their fridge or in their cupboards. After they had paid their bills, their meager monthly income from Social Security was dwindling. For lunch the mother wanted boiled cabbage with lima beans and collards, but the son reminded her there was no money for that. It was the second week of the month.

They had been on waiting list for food from the Visiting Nurse Association of Texas, the Meals-on-Wheels provider in Dallas. About 800 names were on the list the day I visited.

Indeed, there are waiting lists all over the country, and the statistics are as grim as the prospect of having no food for lunch. The anti-hunger group Feeding America found that nearly 8 percent of Americans 60 and older were food insecure: about 5.5 million seniors.

This year's congressional al budgets are, at least, beginning to address that horrifying statistic.

In the meantime, Feeding America found that almost 10 percent of the Dallas population age 60 and older were “food insecure” meaning they didn't have consistent access to enough food for good health.

The numbers were even worse in other parts of the South. Nearly 12 percent of the senior population in Mississippi and about 10 percent in Alabama, for example, were food insecure. The problem is hardly confined to the South, though. In Indiana, Feeding America said, nearly 8 percent of seniors were not getting proper food; in South Dakota it was 7.3 percent.

The number of hungry seniors has more than doubled since 2001 and is expected to keep increasing. Meal programs almost everywhere struggle to keep up with the growing demand.

This was the third time in 20 years I found myself reporting on hunger among seniors in America. The numbers of elders on waiting lists has grown since I first visited the topic in 1998 and called attention to the irony of older people coming home from the hospital but finding themselves without the food they needed to heal. When I worked with Kaiser Health News on a third story published just two months ago, focusing on the plight of seniors in Memphis, we found the same thing. Very little had changed except that many more people needed help.

“There are tens of thousands of seniors who are waiting,” said Erika Kelly, chief advocacy officer for Meals on Wheels America. “While they're waiting, their health deteriorates, and in some cases we know seniors have died.”

Why is this problem so severe in a country so rich? The answer, very simply, is disagreements over funding. In 1965 Congress anticipated an aging population would need social services and passed the Older Americans Act. In 1972 it added the home-delivered meals program as well as congregate meals available in many locations. But federal dollars haven't kept pace with need, and funds from state and local governments, which often filled in the

SEA COAST ECHO

Capt. Lois "L.J." Fountain, Jr., was recently inducted into the Maritime & Seafood Industry museum Heritage Hall of Fame at a reception held at the museum in Biloxi.

Fountain's name and his shrimp boat, "Paradise," were both recognized and honored at the reception and certificates of appreciation were distributed in his honor.

The awards were given in appreciation for the contributions he made to the maritime industry of the Mississippi Gulf Coast, and his biography will forever be on record at the museum.

Jay Fountain, Capt. Fountain's son, accepted the awards on his behalf.

Lois Joseph (L.J.) Fountain was born on Jan. 1, 1930, on the back bay of Biloxi.

He was the eldest of 13 children born to Louis Joseph Fountain, Sr., and Elzena Lindsey Fountain.

As a young boy, L.J. knew the hardship of growing up in a large family with few resources and therefore was forced to quit school in the eighth grade to help his family by working the waters of the back bay of Biloxi. He caught crabs for his mother to pick for stuffed crabs.

He would ride his bicycle to sell the stuffed crabs around the Keesler Air Force Base area. He worked at different factories along the coast, opening oysters. One of them was owned by Joe Colson of Waveland.

During the summer months, he would work on various shrimp boats, most of them out of the Biloxi Harbor.

At age 19, L.J. joined the U.S. Marine Corps, where he served for two years. After his service, he returned home and met the love of his life, Audrey Garcia.

They were married and lived in Bay St. Louis and had their first son Jay on Nov. 27, 1953.

L.J. then worked with his father-in-law, Earl Garcia at Garcia's Gas Station, located on Hwy. 90 in Waveland.

Lagasse added that there is also another $30,000 in the contingency fund that can be used.

"We're going to put the brand new playground equipment and it's going to have the rubber on the bottom," he said. "We're moving that playground up to the front of the park closer to the west side. The swingsets are going to move, too. At the end of the day, we're going to have this 1,200 square foot community center with a kitchen, you can raise up the outside roll up door and have a concession stand. It's got two bathrooms accessible from the outside and two accessible from the inside."

Smith said that the city plans to add tables and chairs.

Smith said that he has been "troubled" by the rumors he's heard about the community center, such as "if this were in a white neighborhood, this would be a bigger community center."

"No it wouldn't," he said. "No other park in the city has a community center. This is the only one."

Another rumor Smith addressed is that the city is "pocketing money and that's why it's costing so much."

"There is no possible way to take a penny of grant funding or any state money or federal money because there are so many processes in place and those processes cost us on this project," Smith said.

Smith said that Waveland resident Clarence Harris had the idea of putting plywood on the backside of the stage and letting the children paint it.

Smith addressed the rumor that the "not all board members wanted to put a community center back in this community."

"I don't like saying this community," he said. "Because that's not how it is. The truth about what was said was why are we putting a community center in any park."

One resident asked if there was a set rental fee for the center.

Smith said there is a fee set by ordinance, which requires a $100 deposit fee for all the city's rental property.

To rent the community center on Coleman, the cost is $250, Lagasse said.

"We're going to put an amendment in to try and cut that in half," he said.

Lagasse said that if there's a community organization that wants to use the center, "there probably won't be a fee for that rental at all. Somebody will just have to guarantee that it will be clean when it's done."

Smith said that the outside bathrooms will remain open at all times.

He said that the fire department has not yet determined the building's occupancy load.

One resident asked why the two lower bids were disqualified.

"The two lower bids were disqualified because with HUD money, CDBG money, you have to have Section 3 requirements," Smith said. "Section 3 requirements are that you have to have a certain amount of your employees that are making below poverty level to work on that job. So the first two did not have that or have a history of that so they were disqualified by MDA."

Another resident asked if there would be audio and visual recordings at the center for security purposes.

Smith said that for the past year, the city has been looking at installing hi-definition cameras on every city-owned asset.

The current estimate for that is about $87,000, which means the project would have to be put out for bid since it's more than $50,000, he said. The city is gathering the specifications now for that purpose and working on getting Internet access to each location.

That will also allow for WiFi access at those locations, including the MLK Park community center, Smith said.

Smith said that there have been no change-orders on the project and that the community center is scheduled to be completed before the end of December.

Waveland resident Bryan Therolf asked why the stage demolition or relocation was not included in the scope of work.

Lagasse said that the city has spent $6,400 of city funds on the stage and said that the city had chosen to move the stage prior.

"Why let them mark it up, because they have to because of the cost of insurance, another 10 percent when we can save it and do it ourselves," Smith said.

Harris encouraged residents to voice their opinions about the community center.

"It's not the building I thought we were going to get at first," Harris said. "But I think if we use this building, it will be perfect. We're the only park within the city and the county that has a building in it so I'm saying let's use it. It's a community-type thing, let's use it. I would love to see that building open seven days a week doing some kind of community activity in it. The more we do in our community, the better our community is going to be. The more we use that building, the better it's going to be."

gaps, have also fallen short.

When that happens, programs must scramble to make up the shortfall, often relying on local philanthropy to help out. But that's hard to do in places like Pine Bluff, Arkansas, for example, where there are few community resources to tap.

Meals on Wheels America says the nutrition programs are serving 21 million fewer meals a year than in 2005 because of funding shortages. Kelly told me that last year Congress bumped up funding for the program by only $10 million, which means many local programs still experience serious shortfalls.

This year an appropriations bill that has passed the House of Representatives calls for a hefty increase, raising the funding from $906.7 million to one $1 billion. Kelly says, "It would be a record increase."

The Senate's appropriations bill, however, is calling for "flat funding," which means no increase for next year. Advocacy groups are lobbying to change that before the Senate votes on a final bill.

You'd never know from the constant news drumbeat about impeachment and the president that there is other news in Washington. But there is. Whether the Senate decides to increase the budget for home-delivered meals is one story that will tell us whether seniors across America will have enough to eat.

challenges because, for 58 years, Democrats and Republicans have passed the National Defense Authorization Act and agreed on funding for our troops. I am working to meet those goals as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Our military is confronting new threats, including from countries like Russia, China, and Iran, making this task more pressing every day. As Congress debates funding, I hope we can again fulfill our most basic constitutional responsibilities to tomorrow's veterans. The lessons learned since the first Armistice Day show that the best way to protect the hard-fought gains of the veterans we honor is to support today's Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen.

tradespeople with their goods as well. My friends especially enjoyed window shopping at the costume tent which has a corset maker. The most amusing part of the fair is, of course, the shows.

There are numerous shows and demonstrations at the fair, and I enjoyed every one we made it to; I highly recommend the Washing Wenches. The show is full-on comedy and the possibility that you may have to make a fool of yourself is very high. There's an acrobatics troupe, a magician and jousting events, just to name a few, to keep you entertained and laughing your head off. While these shows are great for families and children, there's one show that's strictly for adults. The show is called "Chaste Treasure" and features bawdy drinking songs sung by three lovely courtesans. Again, this show deals with extremely adult themes, so keep the children occupied with something else and be prepared to laugh until your sides hurt.

So come on out of your comfort zone, have your sense of humor ready to go, and come to the Renaissance Festival! Expect to have a great time, and every dollar (in my opinion) is well spent. There's one thing you don't need to bring with you, and that's a refusal to have fun. Huzzah!

and voiced their opinions," he said.

Favre said he was confident the city could pay for the bond issue without raising millage.

"We are a republic and the citizens have elected us to make the big decisions for them," Smith said.

Jason Thomas, a consultant with the Southern Mississippi Planning & Development District, told councilmen the annual note on the bond would be roughly between $344,000 and $350,000, depending on the exact amount procured.

Ward 6 Councilman Josh DeSalvo said his ward badly needs the funds for drainage and infrastructure development, and it wouldn't be fair to put it to a vote because many of the property owners there are second-home owners and live elsewhere most of the time.

"I've got half a ward that doesn't live here -- these are second homes, so they're not going to be here to vote," DeSalvo said. "I'm their voice, here."

"If we couldn't afford this, that would be one thing, but we can afford this bond," Favre said.

Favre said the city could also use about a million dollars to build a new police station.

The old Bay St. Louis police headquarters became a health hazard due to mold, and the police were moved to temporary offices inside city hall last year.

"I'm not going to vote to approve a bond unless at least 75 percent of it is going to wards 5 and 6," Ward 1 Councilman Doug Seal said. "That's the biggest need, we all agreed on that, right? A million for a police station, I'll never vote for that."

"The rest of the money, we'll divide between the other four wards. I hate that the (note) is 20 years, the future right? But when you bought your house, did you decide to pay it off in five years? I didn't."

Knoblock said one of the main reasons he didn't want to approve the bond issue Tuesday because -- despite discussing it for months -- none of the councilman had yet come up with specific plans and projects.

"I guess what I'd like to see is, y'all get your wish lists together and let's talk about this" at the next meeting, Knoblock said.

In other action Tuesday: • Ulman Avenue resident Roy Raush addressed the council to complain about bar noise in the downtown area and "ultra-vulgar song lyrics" being blasted into town in the municipal harbor area.

"Late night on Friday and Saturday, there's just pounding and pounding music," Raush said.

In addition, he said, "There's a trash problem. I actually got a trash picker and I drive up and down Ulman picking up garbage," including beer bottles, cans, fast-food wrappers and bags, "even a used condom."

"It's not the residents," he said, but the bardenizens. "It's an on-going problem. It's been going on for years."

"That should not be happening," Smith said.

Seal said the city has an existing noise ordinance that should have already solved the loud music issue."

Reed said he believed the problem was more of an "enforcement issue."

Reed told Raush that the council appreciated his comments, but "it's up to the administration to enforce the noise ordinance."

Favre said he would address the issue.

served for the people of Hancock County,"

Anderson said, "and I would also like to thank Miss Wendy for a clean, respectful race and I wish her the best of luck in all her future endeavors."

Jay McKnight, who defeated incumbent Dist. 95 Rep. Patricia Willis in the primary, faced no opposition in Tuesday's general election.

In perhaps the biggest upset of the night, Theresa M. Ryan unseated long-serving District 1 Supervisor David Yarborough. Ryan, a Republican, earned 843 votes in unofficial totals; Yarborough, an independent, earned 659. Democratic candidate Jefferson J. "Buster" Verdin IV earned 249.

"I'd like to thank the citizens of District 1 for choosing me to represent you as your new supervisor," Ryan said. "It is such an honor to be elected and represent you and I am humbled that you would place your faith and trust in me. This is a responsibility that I do not take lightly, and I will endeavor to represent you with the utmost transparency and the greatest of efforts."

Ryan will join fellow newcomer to the board, Kodie Koennen, who won the Republican primary in August and faced no opposition in the general election. Hancock Circuit Clerk officials said Tuesday there will be no run-offs.

In the Justice Court

Judge 2 race, Republican Brian S. Necaie -- who defeated incumbent Judge Jay Lagasse in the primary -- won the seat. Necaie earned 2,878 votes to Independent candidate Teresa Ehrlich's 1,189.

In the Justice Court Judge 3 race, Republican candidate Eric C. Moran earned the right to replace Judge Tommy Carver -- who had vacated the position in an unsuccessful primary bid for sheriff. Moran defeated Libertarian candidate Lynn T. Smith 2,283 to 526, according to unofficial totals.

In the Constable 3 race, Republican Paul Taylor won, earning 1,509 votes to Democrat Steven L. Saucier's 603 and Independent candidate Guy "Tater" Graham's 842.

Among other winners on Tuesday:

• Incumbent District 2 Supervisor Greg Shaw, R., held on to his seat, defeating Henry "Hank" Ward, I., 789-287.

• Incumbent District 4 Supervisor Scotty Adam, R., won over Thaddeus Collier, D., 1,634 to 804.

Unopposed candidates in this year's general election -- all Republicans -- include Hancock County Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar; Circuit Clerk nominee Kendra "KK" Ladner Necaie; Sheriff Ricky Adam; Tax Collector/Assessor Jimmie Ladner; District 3 Supervisor nominee Kodie Koennen; District 5 Supervisor Darrin "Bo" Ladner; Justice Court Judge 1 Desmond W. Hoda; Constable Place 1 Terry L. Necaie; Constable Place 2 Ray Seal, Jr.; and Bay-Waveland School District Trustee Mike Bell.

In statewide races, Hancock County voters echoed the rest of Mississippi, casting the majority of ballots for Republicans. In the governor's race, Republican Tate Reeves won 7,763 votes in Hancock County, while Democrat Jim Hood earned 3,147; Constitution candidate Bob Hickingbottom, 18; and Independent David R. Singletary, 124.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Hancock County favored current Secretary of State Delbert Hosemann, a Republican, over Democrat Jay Hughes by 8,241 to 2,685.

In the Attorney General's race, Lynn Fitch R., defeated Jennifer Riley Collins, D., 8,217 to 2,716.

Election results should be certified by next Tuesday afternoon.

The winners of Tuesday's races will take office in January.

with the $8 million,"

Knoblock said, "because I think we could do this if we manage our money correctly. I think if you come in with this $6.1 or $6.5 million, you might come up short."

Knoblock said unforeseen items like higher-than-expected engineering fees and consulting fees on the various projects could balloon the costs.

Ward 3 Councilman Jeff Reed renewed his concern that the people of Bay St. Louis should make the decision whether or not to make such a large investment.

"I'm still trying to wrap my mind around the interest we're going to pay back over the years," Reed said. "We're supposed to hold a two percent (bar and restaurant tax) referendum in December (to fund tourism). Since we're going to indebt the citizenry to such an amount, we ought to let the citizens decide then whether they want to pay this back. We're talking about 20 years, and I'm going to be 80 years old by that point, and I'm not sure I'll even still be here."

"I would like the citizens to say, 'yeah, we what to do this here,' or 'no, we don't want to do this here,' and December is next month -- we can put it on the (ballot with the) referendum and let the citizens decide."

Mayor Mike Favre said the city had already advertised its intent and conducted a public comment period, and there were no major objections.

"We had workshops, we had meetings, people attended those meetings

Breaking the Chains: Pass Christian Pirates win their first-ever playoff game, beat Purvis 35-20

BY HUNTER DAWKINS
THE GAZEBO GAZETTE

Despite being behind after the first half with a 14-7 deficit and offensive uncertainty, the Pass Christian Pirates football team found a way to outscore the Purvis Tornadoes in the second half and win 35-20 in the MHSAA 4A first round playoff matchup.

The playoff win was the first-ever for the Pass Christian High School football team.

Hosting the third Mississippi High School Activities Association Playoff Game in History, the Pass Christian Pirates (8-3) racked up 28 second-half points at the Francis McDonald Stadium.

The Pirates defense forced five turnovers and a special teams on-side kick helped push Pass over the Tornadoes in the first round of the MHSAA 4A Playoffs.

"The defense won this game for us," said Pass Christian Head Football Coach Blake Pennock. "We had a real gut-check on the offense at halftime and turned it on in the second half."

Opening the game with the ball, the Pirates' high octane offense couldn't find any rhythm and didn't score until Pass Christian senior quarterback Dustin "Gunslinger" Allison found senior receiver Andrew Moffett on a 31-yard touchdown pass. After Kicker Davon Klein put the extra point through the uprights with 11:51 in the half, the score was 7-7, with Purvis in the lead.

That was the only score for the Pirates in the first half, and the score was 14-7, Purvis, at halftime.

The Tornadoes didn't fare well in the second half, opening with a turnover on downs. Pass Christian finally took advantage of the situation with Allison running in a six-yard drive with 7:59 left in the third quarter after the extra point.

Purvis would not quit, gathering a nice kick return inside the Pirates' red zone and scoring a quick touchdown after six plays, but missed the extra point for a score of 20-14, Tornadoes lead.

Unlike the first half, the Pirates answered the call with a 47-yard touchdown pass from Allison to Pass Christian receiver Kameron White. Following Klein's extra point conversion, the Pirates took their first lead 21-20 with 3:33 left in the third quarter.

At a timely moment, the Pirates' special teams player KJ Labat recovered the on-side kick Pass Christian attempted. Three plays later, Allison found Pass Christian receiver Dylan Necaie on a 34-yard post route for a touchdown. When Klein put the kick through the uprights, Pass Christian increased the lead 28-20.

Beginning the final quarter, Purvis made its last stand, driving down past midfield until fumbling the ball, which was recovered by Pass Christian defender Xavian Chamberlain.

The next series secured the victory, with Allison finding Necaie again from 12 yards for a passing touchdown. Once the extra point was converted at 8:09 left in the game, the score was 35-20 Pass Christian Lead. With the Pirates stingy defense, Purvis could not come close to the end zone again.

"This was a huge step for our kids and the program," said Pennock. "I'm proud of these kids, but we are not done yet."

Pass Christian plays on the road in the second round of the MHSAA playoffs against South Pike next week at 7 p.m.

SSC downed by Poplarville 35-14 in playoff opener

BY ROB LANGRELL
PUBLISHER

Savvy high school football fans knew what to expect when St. Stanislaus and Poplarville were set to clash on Friday night in the opening round of the state 4A high school football playoffs.

SSC built its success all season around a potent passing attack, while the Hornets proudly had a reputation of leaning heavily on their ground game. In the end, Poplarville's rushing success proved to be too much for the Rock-A-Chaws to weather.

The host Hornets never trailed in the game and pulled away in the second half en route to a 35-14 victory over SSC on a chilly evening that saw temperatures dip into the low 40s and a wind chill in the upper 30s. Poplarville, which improved to 6-5, advances to next week's second round and will square off against North Pike -- an upset winner over Quitman.

"They are good at what they do," said SSC coach Nathan Encrpera. "They run the ball so effectively. They can do it in their sleep."

"Their coaching staff does a great job preparing their kids to be successful at that," he added. "We knew what to expect, but you have to win first and second downs and put them in passing situations. We just didn't do that consistently tonight."

Poplarville outscored SSC by a 21-7 margin in the second half, including 14-0 in the fourth quarter, to secure the victory.

After the schools battled each other in a tight first half that saw Poplarville take a 14-7 advantage into the locker rooms at intermission, the Hornets effectively moved to ball down the field to start the third quarter with a 10-play, 69-yard that covered four and a half minutes.

They strung together eight runs and just two passes -- the second completion a 15-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Blaise Breerwood to Casin Sones. The PAT pushed Poplarville's lead to 21-7.

SSC answered later in the third quarter when quarterback Max Favre hooked up with Connor Ladner for a 19-yard scoring strike. That capped a seven-play, 59-yard drive and trimmed the deficit to 21-14.

"We were right there going into the fourth quarter with a chance to do it," Encrpera said. "(Poplarville) has a lot of playoff experience and knows what playoff football is all about."

In that final quarter, Poplarville's Zac Owen found the end zone from three yards out on the 12th play of a drive -- 11 of which were runs. That score and subsequent PAT extended the Hornets' lead to 28-14.

With three minutes to play, Poplarville's Trae Wilson intercepted a Favre pass at his own 28-yard line. Three plays later, Owen burst through the line and galloped 66 yards for a TD that made it 35-14 and ultimately ended SSC's season. The Rock-A-Chaws finish the 2019 campaign with a 6-5 mark.

Poplarville got on the board first in the contest when Devin Hart intercepted a Favre pass deep in his own territory and returned it 35 yards untouched for a TD and a 7-0 lead with 4:30 to play in the opening quarter.

St. Stanislaus knotted the game at 7-7 when Favre hit Lee Negrotto with a 6-yard TD pass and Gene Hoffman added the PAT.

Poplarville found the end zone with five minutes left in the half. Chase Shears scored from 22 yards out and the PAT made it 14-7.

The Hornets, the reigning South 4A state champion, lived up to its billing on Friday. They ran the ball 48 times, while throwing just six passes.

On the flip side, SSC lived and died with its passing game. Favre aired the ball out on 43 of the Rock-A-Chaws' 52 offensive plays and was intercepted four times.

"This is a tough one to end with," said Favre, a senior. "They're a pretty good team but we didn't play our best tonight. It was a good year for us, but it could have been so much better."

Hawks soar to final victory on seniors' wings

BY DWAYNE BREMER
STAFF WRITER

The 2019 season may not have turned out the way the Hancock Hawks had hoped, but they ended it on a high note with a 42-28 victory on Friday over the West Harrison Hurricanes.

"I'm proud of the way we stayed the course," Hawks Head Coach Neil Lollar said. "This week's practice was just as good as the practices in week one. I'm very happy for all of the seniors who were able to go out with a win."

Leading the way for the Hawks' Friday was senior running back Sebastian Fausett, who rushed for a career-high 207 yards on 25 carries and scored three times.

The Hawks came out strong Friday and built a 21-0 lead, scoring on their first three drives.

Fausett got things going with a three-yard scoring run midway through the first quarter. Austin Hyde added the point-after to give the Hawks the early lead.

Senior Devin Laneaux thwarted the Hurricanes' next drive with a sack near midfield, and three plays later, Wyatt Ladner busted loose on a 27-yard touchdown run. Hyde's point-after made the score 14-0.

Later in the second quarter, Pierre Fowler extended the Hawks' lead

The Hawks recovered the next outside kick and drove 58 yards in seven plays to extend their lead.

This time, it was quarterback SemaJ Robertson who weaved through traffic for 18-yards en route to the end zone.

Hyde added the point-after to give the Hawks a 28-14 lead with 9:50 to play.

West Harrison then shocked the Hawks with a 78-yard touchdown run by Keonte Smith. Smith led the Hurricanes with 127 yards on six carries.

The point-after pulled the Hurricanes to within one score at 28-21 with just over eight minutes to play.

Hancock answered with a 51-yard scoring drive. Fausett registered the score with a bruising 13-yard run, in which he carried four defenders into the end zone.

After an interception by Tanner Lemon, Fausett added his final score on his last carry of his career, a 44-yard touchdown scamper with just over four minutes to play.

Hyde's point-after gave the Hawks a 42-21 lead.

The Hurricanes added a late touchdown when Josiah Khan scored on a three-yard run.

The Hawks recovered the onside kick, and with just a few seconds to play, Lollar decided to give one of his offensive lineman a

On Feb. 20, 1955, L.J. and Audrey's second son Michael was born.

L.J. was drafted into the U.S. Army shortly after Michael was born. He relocated his family to North Carolina while he served two years during the Korean conflict. During that time, their third son Kenneth was born on Feb. 6, 1957.

In 1958, L.J. and his family returned to the Bay st. Louis area, where they lived with family members. He then joined the Mississippi National Guard to supplement his pay and bought an unfinished Jim Walter Homes, where manager Charlie Benigno asked him to sell houses. One year, he sold more than a million dollars in homes in one year, so the company rewarded him by donating all of the building materials to finish his home.

The National Guard then called him to active duty during the Cuban Missile Crisis.

Over the years, L.J. and Audrey had three more sons, Tyrone, Glenn and Tom. Tom passes away as an infant, but the remaining five sons grew up learning their parents' teachings that you must work hard for what you want, always respect other sand be honest no matter what.

For most of his life, L.J. dreamed of owning a large shrimp boat and working for himself. He owned several skiffs and worked them with his sons, catching shrimp to sell for extra income. Eventually, he went to work with Mississippi Marine Conservation as the conservation supervisor from Biloxi to the Mississippi Louisiana state lines. He was instrumental in making sure fishermen followed the laws and helped stop the harvesting of egg crabs which would deplete the population. He worked long, hard hours replenishing oyster beds by creating a modified craft capable of transferring oysters form contaminated areas to clean oyster reefs. As a result, 5,000 barrels of oysters were moved in one month. He continued to help the oyster population by taking the shells from the factories and transporting them to the closed reefs so that they would replenish the reefs with fresh oysters. He and his sons cut tall pine tries sand used them to mark boundaries for shrimpers so they know how far to go out from shore.

After working several years for the Conservation, L.J. had finally saved enough money to purchase the "Paradise," a shrimp boat in need of many repairs. He and his sons worked many long, hard hours to make it the boat o his dreams and seaworthy enough to catch many pounds of shrimp and many barrels of oysters.

In one successful night, he made enough money to pay of the boat and resign from the Marine Conservation. He then worked many years catching shrimp and oysters and delivering them to the Bayou Caddy docks in Bay St. Louis and the Pass Christian Harbor.

For many years, he enjoyed participating in the Pass Christian Blessing of the Fleet.

Katrina was unforgettable. He inspired confidence in recovery efforts and understand the importance of building community spirit to help get things done," Troy-Bilt brand manager Barbara Roueche said. "We were honored to work with the mayor on several projects between 2007-2010 and to be involved today with this beautification project."

Another pergola will be constructed at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis. Holy Trinity Catholic School's fourth-grade students will receive seed packets and educational materials related to environmental stewardship.

Waveland Mayor Mike Smith spoke about Longo's service to Waveland.

He always had time for you, sometimes too much time, because y'all know you never had a short conversation with Tommy Longo."

Koch spoke about Longo's role in the non-profit LeadersLink, which was founded by Koch.

According to leaderslink.org, "When Superstorm Sandy struck the East Coast, Koch recognized how much mayors on the Jersey Shore needed the advice of Gulf Coast mayors who were now disaster pros. She began linking them up and the partnerships made a significant difference in the communities' recoveries. Koch realized then the value of a powerful network drawing on leaders' firsthand knowledge."

Koch said that Longo traveled to town affected by Hurricane Harvey in Texas and spoke to mayors.

"He made such a difference because he was able to inspire them, to give them hope that their towns would recover like ours," Koch said.

Koch said she thought it was "good and fitting" to honor Longo's legacy with the live Oak trees, pergolas, and raised bed gardens which "will remind everyone who comes here about Tommy's service and his commitment to our community."

Koch said that the "greatest monument" to Longo is Waveland.

"The city that in 2005, after Hurricane Katrina, USA Today, remember on the front page said had vanished," Koch said. "It's alive and well. And I think this city exists today largely because of Tommy Longo. It's a lasting testament to his hard work, his determination and his undying love for this place."

Tommy Longo's brother, Ted thanked everyone involved with the project.

"The best you can hope for when it's over when you served in the public is that somebody says that was a good person," Longo said. "When you're in politics, when you're an elected official, you get in situations that aren't always easy. And yet at the end of the day, you just hope people remember you as a good person. And the fact that we're here today and for all the people that made this happen. On behalf of all the Longos, we thank you."

Hancock Chamber presenting lift off strength and endurance challenge to support Leadership Hancock County, taps Ted Longo as honorary chairman

SEA COAST ECHO

The Hancock Chamber of Commerce is proud to announce the Lift Off! Strength & Endurance Challenge. This event will take place on Saturday, Nov. 9th from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. at Prestige Fitness in Pass Christian. The competition will include HIIT and 1/2 HIIT challenges, a rowing and cycling team marathon, powerlifting and the Murph Challenge.

This will be the second year for the competition. It is being led by Leadership Hancock County alumnus James Buras of Compton Engineering. A fitness enthusiast, Buras wanted to create a fundraiser that would promote health and wellbeing and benefit the community. He chose Leadership Hancock County because, like physical training, Leadership Hancock County develops people to into stronger versions of themselves and has an immediate positive impact on both individuals and the community at large.

"We're really excited to be holding Lift Off for a second year and seeing it grow," said Buras. "Tying it to Leadership Hancock County is a great match because weight training builds physical strength and the Leadership program strengthens your skills as well as the community. We invite anyone who may be interested in one or both to come to Prestige Fitness on November 9th."

Serving as Honorary Chairman of Lift Off is Ted Longo. A lifelong resident of Hancock County, Longo is a past State Chairman for USA Powerlifting (USAPL), a drug-free powerlifting organization that was founded at St. Stanislaus College in Bay St. Louis by Brother Bennett Bishop. From its roots in the Bay, USAPL now has a presence in all 50 states and is a member of the International Powerlifting Federation (IPF), which has federations in 83 countries.

Longo has earned many distinctions in weightlifting. Most recently, he won the USAPL National Championship in Chicago in May of 2019 for his age and weight class. He also broke two Mississippi records for bench and squat, and was invited on the USA team in the International Powerlifting Federation World Master's Meet in South Africa in October 2019.

Registration for each Lift Off event is $30, except for the rowing and cycling team marathon, which is $150 per team (up to 6 people). Arborio, Jasmine, Basmati, Brown, Long, and Short

BY LINDA BIGLER
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

There are many varieties of rice and most are available to the home cook. There are two types of rice which I avoid like the plague. There is no room in my pantry for quick cooking rice or converted rice. Neither type has the flavor or texture of correctly prepared rice. When I cook rice for normal use, such as a base for beans or gumbo, I do it a slight bit differently from the recommended method. I cook my rice like pasta, with about 2 cups of rice, a tablespoon of salt, and 2 to 3 quarts of water. When the rice tests done, it is drained in a colander, and briefly rinsed. This method keeps each little grain separate.

Jasmine and Basmati are two types of aromatic, long grained rice. Jasmine rice cooks up a bit stickier than the Basmati does. Arborio rice is a short-grained rice which is typically used in risotto. Brown rice is rice in its most natural form because the bran layer is not removed. In addition, it is considered a healthier alternative to the white rice due to the fact it contains more fiber. One of the disadvantages of brown rice is the fact it takes longer to cook than the pristine, polished rice. As we all know, wild rice is not rice at all; it is a type of grass. No, not that kind of grass.

Let me begin your rice odyssey by sharing a few recipes for rice dishes.

RICE CASSEROLE

8 ounces pepper Jack cheese, shredded, divided
1 cup sour cream
1 cup mayonnaise
1 clove garlic, crushed
4 green onions, thinly sliced (both green and white part)
1 teaspoon Creole seasoning

4 cups cooked rice (either leftover or freshly cooked)
1 (10 ounce) package frozen, chopped broccoli, thawed and drained

1 (10 ounce) package frozen peas, thawed Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Combine (all but one-half cup) the cheese, sour cream, mayonnaise, garlic, green onions, and Creole seasoning in a large bowl. Fold in the rice, broccoli, and peas. Place the combined mixture in a greased 2-quart casserole. Cover and bake 20 minutes. Sprinkle with the reserved half cup of cheese and bake an additional 5 minutes or until cheese melts.

Serves 6 to 8

RICE PILAF

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 small onion, chopped
1 and one-half cup uncooked Basmati rice
One-fourth teaspoon ground cinnamon
One-half teaspoon salt
3 cups chicken broth
One-half cup chopped roasted cashews
One-fourth cup chopped, fresh flat leaf parsley

In a two-quart saucepan over medium heat, sauté the chopped onion for about 5 minutes or until onion is tender. Add the rice, cinnamon, and salt; sauté an additional 2 minutes. Stir in the chicken broth, bring to a boil, reduce to a simmer, and cover. Cook over low heat for about 20 minutes, until rice is tender. Fold in the cashews and parsley, serve at once.

Serves 4 to 6

Risotto is a labor of love. It requires your undivided attention while it is cooking. To me, it is similar to making a roux; one should not walk away from it until it has been completed.

RISOTTO

2 large onions, chopped
3 cloves garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1 – pound Arborio rice
8 cups, warm, chicken broth
1 cup dry white wine
Three fourths cup freshly shredded Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter

In a Dutch oven over medium heat, sauté the onions in the olive oil for 5 to 7 minutes (until translucent), add the garlic and salt, cook an additional minute. Add the rice, sauté while stirring constantly for two minutes. Stir in 1 cup of the chicken broth. Stir frequently until the broth is absorbed. Repeat, using one cup of broth at a time. This will take between 30 and 35 minutes. Add the wine, gently stirring the rice, until absorbed. Remove from heat fold in cheese and butter; serve immediately.

Serves 6 to 8

The final recipe (hooray!) is for rice pudding with a little cook. A word to the wise: Alcohol does not completely cook out of a dish.

RICE PUDDING

3 large eggs, beaten
1 cup sugar
One fourth teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, brought to a simmer, do not boil
1 and one-half cups cooked rice
One half teaspoon ground cinnamon
One fourth cup amaretto
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
One fourth teaspoon almond extract
1 fourth teaspoon ground nutmeg

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. In a medium mixing bowl, whisk together the eggs, sugar, and salt. Slowly pour in the warmed milk, constantly whisking. Stir in the rice, cinnamon, amaretto, and extracts. Pour mixture into a buttered (6 cup) baking dish. Place the dish in a shallow pan and place in the oven. Carefully pour about 1 inch of boiling water into the shallow pan (Congratulations, you just created a Bain Marie!). Bake for 1 hour. Stir pudding (add more water to shallow pan if needed) and evenly sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake an additional 30 minutes. Remove dish from Bain Marie, cool a bit and serve. Can be served warm or cold.

Serves 4 to 6

Farmer Is Fed Up With Abandoned Pets

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I'm hoping you'll publish this letter and make people aware that farms are not dumping grounds for unwanted pets. This year alone, I've found a litter of kittens (no mama) outside my front gate, two dogs tied up to my cattle gate, and a dead hamster in a cage next to my trash cans.

When an animal is abandoned near our farm, we take it to the local shelter. Most likely that dog or cat is put down after a few days. Dogs that I can't catch, that begin to threaten our livestock, we have to hunt down and kill.

A farm is not the place to leave your pet. We do not have a room in the house staked out for hamster cages. We did not prepare a sunny corner of the barn for your kittens to live in (we have our own barn cats, thank you). Our dog is a highly trained working dog who helps us tend livestock; we do not have time to heal your dog of the trauma you caused by abandoning it, much less teach it how to be a farm dog.

Please don't publish my location, as it might just encourage more idiots to dump their pets at my front gate. — Frustrated and Sad Farmer

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I hear you, and I'm sorry it's happening to you. Folks, dumping your pet is cruel, and in some states, it's a crime. Most abandoned pets suffer and die. If you cannot take care of a pet, contact the local shelter for help. Your pet is your responsibility.

Meet Zena. She is one beautiful gal! Look at those beautiful eyes and remarkable coat. Both are the exquisite traits of the Catahoula Leopard Dog or Cur, the state dog of Louisiana. This 1 year old may also have some Terrier in the mix, but we find the combination irresistible. Zena is super sweet and loves people. She made fast friends with the other dogs in her living area, and made many new pals at Pet Smart, so we feel that she could easily join a home with existing family dogs. A home with a fenced back yard would be ideal, as she loves romping-n-playing in our doggie play yard. She would be an outstanding family pet, or the loyal BFF of a single person, couple, or active retirees. She enjoys going for walks, lots of playtime, and quality time with her human friends. But, most of all, she loves being a lap dog! This smart girl sits for treats, and learned the command in just one afternoon. She is so smart! We are unsure if Zena is house or crate trained, but she keeps her kennel clean, and did not have any accidents at our off-site adoption event. Come by the shelter, 7175 Texas Flat Road, Kiln, to meet this wonderful girl, and you'll know why we adore her so much. Call 228 466 4516 for more information, and visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Zena, and of the many other wonderful, adoptable fur-babies looking for their forever homes.

TAKING CARE OF OUR OWN

BY GARY ANDREWS
GARY@GADEVOTIONALS.COM

My mom passed away in 1973. My dad went home to be with the Lord in 1998. My wife's parents both died in 2004. One thing all of our parents had in common is that when they left this world to join our Heavenly Father, they all lived in their home.

There are many older parents that are put in a nursing home because the children do not want the bother of keeping them. Also, on the same note, there are many older parents that ask to reside in these homes so they won't interfere with their children or be a nuisance to them.

Over the years I have been in and out of these homes visiting and have run into widows or aging parents that have been abandoned by their family and left to be cared for by the local employees. These employees do a terrific job, in most cases, however they are not family members. Some of our aging population are put in these homes out of need and this, in many cases, cannot be helped. Some of the homes are government subsidized and this helps relieve the burden of cost on the family.

The Apostle Paul told a young Timothy in 1 Timothy 5:4, "But if a widow has children or grandchildren, these should learn first of all to put their religion into practice by caring for their own family and so repaying their parents and grandparents, for this is pleasing to God."

Before the day of nursing homes aging parents and grandparents were taken care of by their children, grandchildren, and/or close kin. These were the days of stronger family units because children were raised at home instead of in daycares and preschools. Again, daycares and preschools are fabulous items when they are run correctly and they do fill a need in today's society.

What we have become in today's modern society is a greedy atmosphere. We want for our children to have more than we had growing up and this, again in many cases, creates the need for both parents to work. When both parents have to work the children are raised pretty much by strangers to us and it also takes away the possibility of caring for our aging parents. When our children are put into places to stay other than home we never know what they are being exposed to, the language they hear, or the mannerisms they learn.

I am a baby boomer and when I was growing up in the 50's and 60's the family unit was more intact because it was a one income family and all of us adapted to what we had. If we couldn't afford it, we didn't get it! When it came time to eat, the family sat down together. This was time for communication among all the family members because many of the families of that day didn't have televisions or the children had limited access to them. This was also a day and time when our parents took care of their parents and made sure they were secure in what they were eating and where they lived. It was a day and time when we took care of our own families.

I am not saying this doesn't happen today because it does. It is not near the level as it was then and many of our aging adults are put on others to be cared for.

When there are widows among us in our church and they have no family, we are to look after them and take care them also. We are told in 1 Timothy 5:8, "If anyone does not provide for his relatives, and especially for his immediate family, he had denied the faith and is worse that an unbeliever."My brothers and sister took care of our parents as my wife and her siblings did theirs. I can only hope that all of you do the same especially since they were the ones that took care of you and raised you into adults.

Prayer: Father God thank you for the parents that you gave us. Thank you also for the children you have allowed us to have and I pray that they will look to you for guidance and listen to you through your word. Amen.
